July Meeting Highlights

- The next planning meeting for the Meals-on-Wheels Benefit Dance is scheduled for the August Business Meeting on the 17th. This was stated at the June meeting and was inadvertently omitted from the Meeting Highlights in the July issue of the Shag Rag.
- Since our final tally of the golf tournament, we have received $1000 from Shoffner Industries and $100 from Nations Bank. This brings our final tally to $5200. Not too shabby for a club our size!
- It was decided that we would make up a form to send shag club members asking for names and addresses of 10 friends for prospective attendees at our functions. Al Fogleman volunteered to word the letter to go along with the form.
- Al Fogleman gave a brief report on the Meals-on-Wheels Benefit Dance. It seems that Al's Fine Foods is closing. Until it is sold, they will rent it out for $850 per night. They will not do the catering. So we will have to get bids on the catering. Al said he would get a bid from his sister-in-law, Glenda Fogleman, who runs Old Fogies. If anyone knows of anyone else they would like to bid on the catering, please call him with the information. They caterer will have to furnish glasses, silverware, plates, tablecloths, napkins, etc. It will cost $60 to set up tables and $120 to take down tables and clean up. Al's Fine Foods still has their liquor license but will not purchase the beer and wine. This way we can handle that and make a profit on the sale of beer and wine.
- The fall golf tournament will be Saturday, October 8th, at Shamrock Golf Course. More information will be in the September Shag Rag.
- The next meeting will be Wednesday, August 17, 1994. Time and place will be announced elsewhere in this issue.

Summer Blast Review

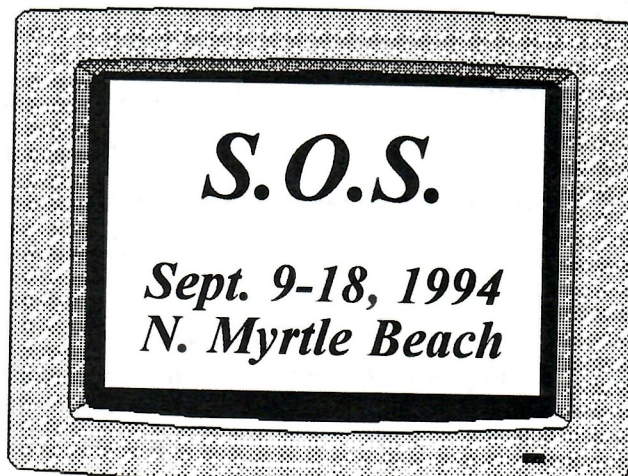

by Martha Mobley

If you weren't at Quarry Hills, Saturday, August 6th, you missed a great party! The hors d'oeuvre spread was great, the DJs (Jackie & Roy) played some mighty fine music, and the entertainment was superb. Ron Johnson (Dummy-N-Me) put on a great show. He's a comedian, singer, magician and a ventriloquist. He brought 4 different dummies with him. Thanks to some input from someone (namely Bob), a few members of our club got to participate in the show (Carol & Bubba, Jim Phipps, Steve McHone and myself). This guy had us all in stitches. I must say I had more fun that night than I've had in a long time. Most of these functions, if you're single and without a date, make you feel a little left out because there's not usually anyone to dance with.

We also had quite a few people who came from Greensboro, Eden and Martinsville - even some from our club who we never see much of. Sure was good to see each and everyone there for the turnout (79 people attended). Everyone I talked to was impressed with Quarry Hills new clubhouse. Since you like it so much, we'll see you there in December for our Christmas Party.

Thanks to Bob for getting this event together. Also thanks to everyone who took up money at the door. We gave away some "dinner for two" gift certificates from area

Shag Lessons

Martha Mobley

In talking to Jim & Sharon Brown of Chapel Hill about teaching lessons in Burlington, they would like to start the classes on October 4th to give everyone a rest from SOS. There's a chance we can have the lessons at Best Western. Because our business meetings are on Wednesdays and they have a DJ on Wednesdays, the lessons would have to be on Tuesdays. Watch the newsletter for more details as they become available.

Arts are Basic to Education

by W. Mike York

It's time to speak out for the arts, dance in particular. Let's ignore the self-righteous cynics who see evil everywhere. Some of us would agree that a truly educated person is someone who can put formal learning into practice (a dynamic arts curriculum in the public schools provides students with this opportunity). In our modern day life style the arts are as essential to basic education as math and science. Charles Fowler, author of Can we Rescue the Arts for America's Children? argues the following point: "The unique attributes of the arts make them a valuable resource for general education. Whereas schools tend to reward regimented, convergent thinking, the arts teach students divergent thinking--that there may be many correct answers to a problem. This is far more often the case in the real world."

The art's program is generally underfunded in our public schools, and dance is the most neglected of all. This is unfortunate because dance is a creative median of expression that appeals to a large number of people. Even Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, could dance a mean waltz. Anyone who examines skillful dancing couples--shagging, bopping, or swing dancing--sees the importance of practice, having fun, self discipline, exercise and working together to achieve success.

The particular art form of shag dancing originated in the Carolinas and is a unique part of our southern cultural heritage. Understanding ourselves and preserving southern history is essential to democracy. The state legislature of South Carolina selected the shag as their state dance. The shag dance is closely associated with the Memphis Beale Street Rhythm and Blues music which is another phenomena of southern culture.

Why aren't we emphasizing the art form of shag dancing in the North Carolina public schools? Why aren't we emphasizing the art form of shag dancing in the state tax funded North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem? Including the teaching of shag dancing in our public schools could enhance multicultural harmony in the south by showing the close association between black blues music and white shag dancing.

Let's begin doing something really significant about family values. The teaching of social dance in the schools would give North Carolina students a life long skill to use for recreation. What better way for a husband and wife to spend a night of fun than to shag dancing in one of the more than one hundred shag/bop clubs located all across the South!

Mike is a member of the Burlington Shag Club and is an assistant principal in the Randolph County School System.

Q: Hitler. Saddam Hussein and an attorney are in the room with you. You have a gun, but only two bullets. Who would you shoot?

A: The attorney - twice. It's better to be safe than sorry.

Rule of Life #854

If a man is bald in the front of his head, it means he is a great thinker. If he's bald in the back of his head, it means he's a great lover. If he's bald all over, it means he thinks he is a great lover.

Q: If Bill, Hillary, Al and Tipper were all in a boat that sank, who would be saved first?

A: The U.S. Economy.

Did you hear about the NC State professor who wanted to be buried at sea? His three sons drowned while digging his grave.

TASSELS

Bottled Water

She was reading The New Republic. She could be forgiven for that, of course, except she also drank bottled water. Ordered it with lunch without even looking up from the menu and with complete disregard that it cost $2.50. OK, OK--she might be allergic to fluoride. How am I supposed to know? And someone must eat lox and cream cheese on wheat brand bread or they wouldn't serve it. At least, I wouldn't think they would.

And the temperature had dropped into the mid-thirties about sunup, but the drizzle had stopped, the sun had come out and it was warming up. Maybe she just didn't have anywhere to put the oversize sweater that looked like it was made from a combination of burlap and duck canvas. At least it didn't clash with the floor length black shapeless skirt. You can say that much.

Then when you think about it, $2.50 is not much to pay for something to drink, even when it's just water, when you don't spend any money at the beauty parlor. At least there was nothing to indicate she did. Her hair gathered about her waist when it was combed, I think, but I couldn't be sure. She did keep it out of her eyes with a remnant from the sweater stuff which was too tough to rip up, even if she did have a pair of scissors.

Girls who drink bottled water and read the New Republic don't smoke, so the yellowish stain on her front upper teeth most likely came from some exotic tea, not the kind that comes in bags from Bi-Lo. That could explain that but a ring on each finger that most people point with and no ring on any other--I just can't figure.

She was surely not a conformist so I didn't expect her earrings to match, but I did expect them to be pierced. They weren't and they matched. Huge ceramic things that dangled halfway to her shoulder, they looked like they had been fired in a brick kiln. It didn't seem to bother her that the left one kept slipping off, so I was not surprised when she just ended the matter by dropping it in her purse.

Except that purse somehow or other is just not quite the right word. I hung from her shoulder on a large rope like drawstrap, which ran through brass looking grommets sailors know about. It was huge and bulged at the bottom. It was none of my business so you know I didn't look, but I could imagine two or three paperbacks by authors and on subjects about which I knew absolutely nothing.

She didn't leave a tip and there was some discussion about her check on an out-of-state bank as she paid the bill. Delay enough for me to swallow the last ice cube from my tea glass and ease my way to the door to continue to satisfy my curiosity.

The bicycle was sort of expected. But I wasn't ready for the kind it was. I was looking for one of those European tins with lots of levers and things around the handle bars and a teeny little bottle with a curved pointed spout under the seat. But it was an old blue Schwinn with a bendix brake and balloon tires. I bet she's never even heard of Lottie Moon, I thought, as she pedaled up the hill.

A woman went to a plastic surgeon to get a face lift because she had a phobia about getting wrinkles. After the surgery and the bandages had been removed she looked in a mirror and said "Doc, you are a miracle worker. I look beautiful, but will I stay this way?"

"I knew you were concerned about the wrinkles returning", the doctor replied, "So I put a little crank under your hair line on the back of your neck. When you see a wrinkle starting on your face, just turn the crank a little bit and the wrinkle will be gone."

About 6 weeks later, the woman called the doctor and asked if the surgery would have anything to do with the acne she was getting on her face. The doctor said "I don't think so, but come in and I'll take a look at it." When she got to the doctor's office and the doctor took a closer look, he said "Madam, they're not pimples - they're your nipples and if you keep turning that crank you're going to have a mustache!!!

Boogie with the Shag Clubs

by Martha Mobley

The Greater Triad Shag Club invited our club and two other shag clubs to join them Saturday, July 23rd, at Thirsty's Beach Club in Greensboro.

We had approximately 14 people from our club there. The Durham club had 15. I don't know how many were there from Walnut Cove. A great time was had by all. You should have seen the hors d'oeuvre spread they put out!

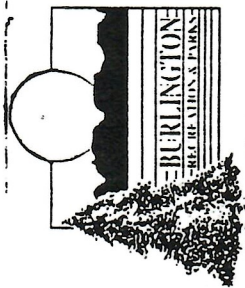

Thurston & Linda (co-owners of Thirsty's) and the Greater Triad Shag Club were very hospitable and made everyone welcome. I don't think they'll have to worry if they wanted any of us to come back!

Bunk Leach Charity Mixed Doubles

by Martha Mobley

This was the 2nd Annual Mixed Doubles Contest put on by Bunk Leach at Thirsty's Beach Club in Greensboro. Several members of our club went up Friday night, July 29. It was like a mini S.O.S. One Lung, Chicken Hicks, Shad & Brenda Alberty, Norfleet Jones, Linda Carol Flynn are just a few of the great dancers who were there. On the younger side, Geoff Burdick and Rachel Long were there. Talk about some awesome dancing!

The contest was held Saturday night and Sunday afternoon. I didn't go back for the contest so I'm not sure of the outcome. I do know the winning places were for the top 3 males and the top 3 females. There were 29 couples entered in this contest.
